Patryk McGlynn is a standout student-athlete whose leadership, resilience, and vision have been evident both in the classroom and on the basketball court. His journey is uniquely international, shaped by periods of residence in Seattle, Krakow, Barcelona, and Valencia, fostering deep adaptability and an informed global outlook. Patryk's defining strengths—vision, adaptability, and hard work—are evident in every aspect of his academic, athletic, and extracurricular life.

Patryk succeeded in the rigorous International Baccalaureate Diploma Programme, earning an overall score of 40, with especially strong grades in Mathematics (HL 6) and Business Management (HL 7). Balancing this academic workload alongside a demanding athletic schedule demonstrated his exceptional organizational skills and perseverance. Patryk consistently sought academic challenges, completing independent research for his Extended Essay (examining biomechanics and AI in basketball) and Internal Assessments, such as exploring Game Theory in Monopoly and analyzing logistics innovations at UPS.

He approaches learning with an entrepreneurial mindset, eager to apply theory to practice. This is evident in his pursuit of business-related courses, participation in a practical company start-up project, and contributions to an investment team managing $100,000 in the US stock market. Patryk is an articulate presenter and self-driven scholar, unafraid to ask questions and push his understanding further.

As a basketball player, Patryk has attained notable honors, serving as a combo guard and starter for a top-12 U18 team in the Comunidad Valenciana, playing for Irish U16/U18 National teams, and currently competing at a high level with DME Academy. He is a two-time All-Star selectee at major international school competitions in Madrid and Geneva. Patryk's athletic journey is marked by determination: he routinely endured intense, twice-daily practices, learning that discipline and collective effort unlock human potential beyond perceived limitations.

Patryk's leadership extends beyond personal achievement: he has captained multiple teams, led school clubs (including student council, Eco-committee, and yearbook), and been a MUN delegate, chair, and president. In each setting, he encourages teammates, models resilience, and sets a high standard for integrity and support.

is deeply engaged in service, contributing through the ASV Service Squad, environmental clean-up initiatives, food drives, and organizing fundraisers for his community. His international upbringing has instilled in him a strong sense of empathy, open-mindedness, and responsibility—qualities he brings to global discussions in Model United Nations and diverse group settings.

In his 12th-grade year, Patryk realized a calling toward entrepreneurship, guided by mentors such as his father and Mike Panaggio. He actively seeks out opportunities to learn from business leaders and participates in enrichment programs designed to build his start-up acumen. Patryk displays vision and initiative—qualities that will equip him to meet the evolving challenges of university study and future enterprise.

In summary, Patryk McGlynn is a remarkably well-rounded individual whose work ethic, leadership, and international experience position him for extraordinary academic and personal success. As his counselor at the American School of Valencia, I have had the opportunity to interact with and get to know Patryk as both a student and an individual. He is outstanding, one of the best human beings I've met in my career.

Patryk's ability to thrive in diverse environments, lead teams, balance intensive commitments, and approach problems with creativity and maturity make him a compelling addition to any university community. Patryk is unequivocally recommended for admission to your university.

Please let me know if you have any questions or concerns at veronicacinosi@asvalencia.org